The methods of obtaining adult movies and pornography studied in this course include viewing and purchasing them on-line. The online viewing and purchasing of adult movies and pornography are designed to be used in conjunction with the analysis of visual and narrative strategies in adult movies and pornography. There is an extension course in Sociology of Pornography that covers the full range of theoretical, research, and commercial issues, especially the evolution of Internet pornography and the cultural and legal control of Internet pornography. In the professional focus course, you will develop strategies to meet the ethical obligations of you as professional, the sexual and legal obligations of you to your clients, and the legal, ethical, and therapeutic obligations to your clients. You will develop strategies to interact with your clients in the professional context. Whether you are a client or a provider of adult counseling, sex therapy, or human sexuality education, you will need strategies to understand and address cultural, legal, and ethical issues. In this course you will study the professional and legal contexts for the technical aspects of human sexuality that are most applicable in your work setting. You will explore the major theoretical, research, and professional issues in the field of sex therapy and human sexuality education, as well as clinical, ethical, and political issues in your own work setting. The materials published on this site are intended for adult viewing purposes only.
