This invention relates to the field of aerial cable suspension for mining and geological purposes. The invention pertains to the field of aerial cable suspension for mining and geological purposes, and in particular to an improved safety measure. With drilling technology, deviation and the desire for further mining in increasingly difficult to reach regions, underground mining using rotary drilling has become widely practiced. Underground mining using rotary drilling makes use of several drill rigs where the drill rigs are suspended by an aerial cable or cables; these rigs are lowered onto the rock surface and can be drilled and receive rock fragments while their position may be observed from a remote control station, or from the surface using an optical device on the rig, for example. Aerial cable suspensions consist of a cable which is held by a pod and the tool is lowered onto the work. The suspension pod is raised and lowered in relation to the mining system. The prior art aerial cable suspensions use a linear motor to raise and lower the upper cable attached to the hoist. The prior art linear motors used include a plurality of linear electric motors disposed one behind the other in the direction of movement so that the upper cables are raised via electric coils and electric current. Such a system has a relatively high weight, and also involves an expensive vehicle system with air suspension, hydraulic suspension and electric linear motors. Cable support of the invention for mining purposes consists of an upper rail; this upper rail is held by a braking system in relation to a lower rail, whereby the upper rail is capable of being moved linearly via the lower rail. At least one sprocket wheel is engaging with the upper rail, via a rotary drive, so that the upper rail is capable of being linearly moved between an upper position and a lower position. At least one first motor is arranged to move the upper rail towards the lower rail when the upper rail is in the upper position, and at least one second motor is arranged to move the upper rail towards the lower rail when the upper rail is in the lower position. Further, the invention

If this is something that is part of the design of a bathroom, how come most showers have 1 urinal and more than one toilet? Also, is there a general rule about the amount of toilets to urinals? I have never seen a shower with 2 urinals and only 1 toilet. Chris, via email Answer: If you visit your local boys' change room you're very likely to find the men in the room will have a toilet stall and the women will have a toilet stall, a urinal, and a sink. No mixed-sex bathrooms have more than one urinal, although this is a common image in some horror movies and TV shows (haunted houses where the men's toilet c9d1549cdd

Section III: The Pope's Death... It's Coming (23:09--23:58) Back at the Penthouse. Staberius: "I say it's the reaper!" Hyliau-UK: "That's some theory." Staberius: "Indeed." Hyliau-UK: "Tell us about this 'devil's apport' of yours." Staberius: "Allegedly it'll be coming at you in the form of a monster born on September 9th... Reportedly its' eye color will change at different times, but will be yellow, red or black in color. Its' first appearance will be at 4:33 a.m. in Lake Samosata. It's said to appear in a gathering of over seven thousand people and will begin by opening a gigantic mouth that rests on the earth and is filled with small blades that spin in the shape of a human face. Then the blades will break out and the horrid face will rise up and devour the entire planet. The apocalypse is coming." ----3:06 p.m. Saqeb: "So you're saying there's a monster that's just gonna launch an attack?" Hyliau-UK: "Yes." Hyliau-UK: "Is that correct?" Staberius: "Do you want me to show you?" Hyliau-UK: "Sure." Saqeb: "Great." Saqeb: "Okay, first question." Staberius: "Quite right." Hyliau-UK: "Answer what?" Staberius: "The question at hand." Hyliau-UK: "Oh, sure." Staberius: "It's still talking, yes?" Hyliau-UK: "Oh, yeah." Saqeb: "So, this is like after I finish my road trip or whatever." Staberius: "Yes." Staberius: "In the book 'Prison Empire-The Apocalypse Project (The Third Part)-Examining the Home Counties' in the section 'Exterior'." Staberius: "Eight-pointed lightning bolts seal on all connecting points, specifically the crown fontus and the windows of the spatial degrees of the parietes. Expect

Top Hand was published by Euromotion / Taito in Europe in 1974. Though it was never released in the West, the table actually reappeared in "Best In Show" compilations in the U.S.T.A.A., but with a different title than the one on this disc. Puzzle series Compile fame: Card Shark Compile period: 1974 Composer: Itaru Oki Top Hand is an electro-mechanical (EM) game that inspired more than a few other puzzle/shooter hybrids in the early '70s. The game features a 2-player mode, and has a single-player option that pits the players against each other. Top Hand is a fun and exciting game that is very difficult and challenging for all ages, but should be the ideal game for a small and family-style or family-themed party. Exclusive to this Pak: 1. A score chart for Top Hand is included. 2. A Top Hand in "Best In Show" Collection (released in the U.S.T.A.A. in 1978.) 3. A six-screen Top Hand-inspired game for the Game Gear. 4. A Top Hand graphite pencil for the Game Boy. 5. A Top Hand-inspired game for the GameCube. 6. The original artwork for the game is included in this pack as a PDF. "Top Hand" - This unique table has emerged again, this time in the U.S.T.A.A. with a new title: "Best In Show" Volume 1. Top Hand is a 1974 arcade game by the legendary Taito company, which spawned a huge number of imitators. The original hardware has a single playfield, and a pilot joystick. The "Best In Show" collection consists of a number of games from the "best of" series. This disc includes Top Hand, along with Chess Demon (1979), Tennis Pong (1983) and Funky-Town (1984). This version is compatible with the Game Boy version of "Best In Show". Top Hand was one of the first examples of a microprocessor-based, programmable game called a "microgame". Puzzle / Shooter hybrid Compile fame: Billard Attack Compile period:??? Compile game:??? This game includes an exact clone of the latest strategy adventure game, "Billard Attack" for the
